Arter passin' Tuskar our good luck left us, and from that time for 40 days we had a constant succession of westerly gales, with sea tremendous, and we mostly under close-reefed topsails. If it had continued to blow a gale all the time it wouldn't have been so bad, 'cause then we could have took it easy, but it dragged out of us.

"Hows'ever, she were a good ship for usage, and the grub first-rate, except too many bean days, and I've made a many worse passages. We sailor men didn't mind it, but it told on this old chap in the cabin awful, and one day the steward said he didn't believe as he'd ever reach New York alive. You see, he weren't well when he come aboard, and the dragged out of us. New York alive. You see, he weren't will the ship's register. That case were shakin' up he got were too much for him. Ships didn't carry no doctors them days, and so there weren't nobody to physic him, and he kept findin' hisself a-growin' worse, till one day he come to it that he be to make his will. He gonlidn't write and the old may weren't her, he bein' the last man. that he be to make his will. He couldn't write, and the old man weren't much of a fist, but the steward were a dabster at the pen, and he writ what the old chap teiled him; and so the steward, from havin' to tend on him, got to know all about him.

"The night he made his will were a ug'y one. It had been fine in the arternoon, but breezed on from the s'uth'ard tender, and at 8 o'clock we closered her down and furled the mainsail, crochick and jib and spanker. Thank flot, says Jinmy Duncan, as me and him went aft under the shelter of the poop to find a soft place to caulk, 'thank God,' says Jinmy Duncan, as me and him went aft under the shelter of the poop to find a soft place to caulk, 'thank God,' says Jinmy lad,' says 1; and jist at that minute comes the steward out of the cabin, and says he, 'Who's here 'r's says he, and Jinmy ays, 'the me and Jom,' and says he, 'Who's here 'r's says he, and Jinmy ays, 'the me and Jom,' and says he, 'Who's here 'r's says he, and Jinmy ays, 'the mand Jom,' and says he, 'Who's here 'r's says he, and Jinmy ays, 'the mand Jom,' and says he, 'Who's here 'r's says he, and Jinmy ays, 'the mand Jom,' and says he, 'Who's here 'r's says he, and Jinmy ays, 'the mand Jom,' and Jinmy and says he, 'Who's here 'r's says he, and he tool me he'd been a witnessin' the cabin, and when Jinmy and land the tool me he'd been a witnessin' the will of this old chap in the will of this old chap and the second mate, the mate belin' on deek.

"The night he made his will were a sound the old chap in the cabin, which he got to know from tending on him.

"Grog is very nice, a settin' bere, and in green Jinmy and me was keep adshore." And the startice were from the supplied at manifesting the state were to what he is of the cabin, which he got to know from tending on him.

"He said as how he were a very rich man, belongin' to New York, and that he had a darter as had married agin bis will, in consequence of which, the old man had took and cut her off with nothin, and had giv' all his property to a lot of Holy Joe missionary chaps, for the convarsion of the heathens in furrin parts. This here was afore he left home, and feelin' lonesome like, arter his darter left him, he had got his cap and top overleft him, he had got his cap and top overleft him, be had got his cap and top overleft him, be had got his cap and top overleft him, be had got his cap and top overleft him, he had got his cap and top overleft him, be had got his cap and top overle then we could have took it easy, but it would die out as soon as it got into norwest, and then it was make sail, and we'd no sooner get the reefs out and to'gallan sails set than it would back into the s'uth'ard agin, and it would be all hands shorten sail,' and the life were well nigh dragged out of us.

There we was found by the steward, who took us up to a lawyer in Nausau who took us up to a lawyer in Nausau who took us up to a lawyer in Nausau who took us up to a lawyer in Nausau who took us up to a lawyer in Nausau who to make what they called a afferday, about this old chap makin' his will aboard of the Mignon. Jimmy swared to signin' it along with the captain and second mate, and we shares, or money expended for the best medicines.

December, 1843, or thereabouts, and we went out of dock and towed down the river, lettin' go at the nor'west lightship and makin' sail, with the wind west-nor'west, and blowin' a stiff breeze.

"We'd double-reefed the topsails in dock, when we bent 'em, and we didn't far to turn' em out, and from the lightship down to the Skerries, we got as good a shakin' up as I ever seed in my life, bein' three days a bangin' at it, never able to show a rag more than double-reefed topsails and courses, jib and spanker, and carryin' hard at that she bein' new and everythin' strong aboard of her.

"We'll, arter we passed Hollyhead we got a slata, the wind cantin more to the no'th river, lettin' go at the hor's tight by the ship down to the Skerries, we got as lata, the wind carryin' hard at that, she bein' new and everythin' strong aboard of her.

"We'll, arter we passed Hollyhead we got a slata, the wind cantin more to the no'th river, lettin' go at the nor'twest lightship two ships went right clear of each other, and we didn't and must go down. The lee main braves a derially lit that trifle to start a man's tears, after all, especially if that trifle relates to the depreciation of his bank stock, or the ships were all carried away, and we let go the main tack and sheet, and let the yards run in square to deaden her headway so we could git the boats in the water. The old man and the mate kep' their heads good, and everythin' was done decent. The loss of a few hundred dollars will cause a man to weep away five years of his life most any time. Play is thought by many to be below their dignity. Such an idea is a capital one for the doctors.
